CIVIL SERVICE

General Burleson and Colonel House, appointed minister to Ecuador in place of R. S. R. Hitt, a competent diplomat of twelve years' service. "I expect to find diplomacy easy," said Leavell. "I have never been a diplomat officially, but I have been a minister forty years."

John Ewing, of Missouri and Louisiana, native of Alabama, successively collection teller, deputy collector of customs, customs broker, land agent, road overseer, lawyer, and newspaper man, appointed minister to Honduras in place of Charles D. White, a diplomat of nine years' service who won continual promotion on merit.

Benjamin L. Jefferson, of Georgia, Bryan elector in 1908, appointed minister to Nicaragua in place of George T. Weitzel, a diplomat who began his six years' service with an appointment resulting from competitive examination. Jefferson "at the time of his appointment was serving his state as register of the state board of land commissioners, in which office he is said to have shown great executive ability."

Office Seekers Appointed.
William Jennings Price of Kentucky, appointed minister to Panama in place of H. P. Dodge, a diplomat repeatedly promoted for merit. Price is "of courtly and dignified demeanor" and "in 1906 became a leading candidate for Congress."

Preston McGowin, of Oklahoma, native of Kentucky, appointed minister to Venezuela in place of Elliott Northcott, who had served also as minister to Colombia and to Nicaragua. "Journalism is the route by which" McGowin "traversed to the high position."

Of the diplomatic appointments Charles W. Elliot, president of the National Civil Service Reform League, said: "Of the twenty-two ministers displaced, thirteen had had several years' experience. Several of the appointments of these men to diplomatic posts have seemed to the public to have been made in payment of political debts."

SPLENDID COMPANY APPEARS AT PALACE

Ben Toy's Musical Comedy Organization Pleases Big Audiences There.

Brimful of pep, mirth and melody, "A Night in Loveland" as produced by the Ben Toy Musical Comedy Company went big at the Palace theater in three performances yesterday. There are half a dozen principals each of whom takes an active part in the performance and who enlivens the surroundings considerably. Then there is a lively chorus of pretty girls who sing and dance in an entrancing manner, which cause both young and old in the audience to shower them with well deserved plaudits.

During the action of the comedy there are several bits presented in a manner that go very well. A poker game and the different colored stocking bits are worked out to the amusement of the audience. The prima donna has a rich soprano voice which delights all. Her vocal numbers make her a favorite with all, or especially those who have an ear for music. The negro comedian is especially good, his monologue being one of the features of the show. The Jewish character is a whole show in himself, while the artist who has the eccentric role not only does individual stunts that add much to the sketch, but he and his female partner have a dance that is the talk of the city. The company carries a special orchestra leader and all in all it can safely be said that it is the best show that has played the Palace since the opening of the theater.

The Shuberts have engaged Clarice Snider, an actress of seven, to play the role of a little soldier in "Her Soldier Boy."

George Arliss is to revive "The Professor's Love Story," which J. M. Barrie, the author, has revived and improved. This play was originally produced by E. S. Willard.

The Bijou is showing today five reels of the great Boston-Brooklyn world series championship baseball games. These pictures were taken by the Selig Company which had exclusive rights to take them, and all reports from New York, where they have been shown the last three days are enthusiastic in declaring them to be the most satisfactory baseball pictures ever made. All views are close up, showing scenes clearly and satisfactorily. The Selig company had fifty camera men on the grounds so as to miss nothing. The show started at 10 o'clock and will close at 11 p. m.

John Craig, of the Castle Square theater in Boston, is to have a stock company in New York.

The feature attraction at the Grand today is a Metro production entitled "Mister 44" starring Harold Lockwood and May Allison. The added attractions are a Metro-Drew comedy and a Pathe News.

Tomorrow, Dustin Farnum will appear in "The Parson of Panamint," a Paramount offering. Burton Holmes and Beatrice Fairfax will serve as added attractions.

Final preparations are being made, this week, at the Culver City studios, for commencement of work on the production of the Triangle-Ray Koe play, in which Thomas H. Ince will present his new protegee, Enid Bennett, an star. This is a rare drama whose plot centers about a blind girl and is an original product of pen of Lanier Bartlett. The manuscript, it is said, requires the staging of countless picturesque scenes, the story being one with a mining camp setting. Miss Bennett will be supported by Jack Gilbert, the young Ince juvenile, who has scored in several late releases, and the direction will be in the hands of Charles Miller.

Bayard Veiller's new play is called "The Thirteenth Chair." Harrison Hunter and Margaret Wycherly are in the cast.

Thomas H. Ince, the producer of "Civilization," presents today at the Orpheum theater daimy Pauline Starke and Wilfred Lucas, in "The Rummy," a story of newspaper activities, reforms in politics, and the under-towels, tinged with a few original touches and characterizations, which make it truly distinctive. A pretty love story is woven cleverly through this great offering, which is said to be one of the most forceful, and powerfully dramatic plays yet released. The drama is presented in five gripping acts, all of which are artistically set and beautifully pictured. "The Two O'Clock Train," a Keystone comedy, is the added offering.

Tomorrow, "The Romance of Billy Goat Hill" by the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," will be the special feature attraction in the acts. A chapter of "Liberty" will also be shown.

CHAT IS HELD WITH READER

By the Rev. Mr. Allsup Concerning the Charities Campaign to Start Here.

(By the Rev. H. J. Allsup.)
From one end of Clarksburg to the other there have been distributed salmon-colored pamphlets, upon the first page of which appears these words: "Please do not open this." We just knew you would open that pamphlet even if you had to lose an eye in discovering what was inside. But, having opened it, what did the inner contents of that leaflet convey to you? Was there any paragraph on the second page that particularly caught your attention?

Did you notice that the Associated Charities endeavors to secure better physical, mental and moral standards of living in homes which would otherwise be very poorly, (even dangerously) managed?

Possibly this second page of the pamphlet did call all this and many better thoughts to your mind, and if so, I am pleased; but I am wondering if that third page of the leaflet simply impressed you as an uninteresting mass of data, or whether the real warm heart-throbs contained in those cold figures were felt by you?

Is it not a comforting thought that, in a city no greater than Clarksburg, there were 280 families that could be reached and helped by this one organization?

Have you a pronounced vein of humor? Possibly the next two items on that third page may have called forth the thought that the figures might better have been reversed—that three ought to have been fifty-seven husbands deserted, instead of that many wives! But, thank God for an imagination that steps in, when men forget their solemn obligations, and assume the care and protection of the neglected woman, left without a natural protector.

Please do not fail to consider long and earnestly, what it means to Clarksburg that 348 men and 169 women were given honest, honorable work, rather than having been pauperized by the giving of alms or charity, when the need was only that they should be guided to the proper employment.

Is it not a stunning revelation that such a multitude of things, when placed in the hands of the secretary of the Associated Charities, at the rooms in the Latstetter building, may be converted to such good use? Does this not call to your mind the many articles that are now really cluttering and cumbering up your home, that, if sent to these rooms, would find their way speedily into the possession of thankful and needy individuals? Do not make the fatal mistake of promiscuously giving to uninvestigated and unknown individuals. Make of the Associated Char-community an invaluable service. Do not fail to notice in this connection, that special diligence is exercised in protecting children and young girls from the temptations that exist in hideous form, even in a city no larger than ours. The organization deserves our hearty support if for no better reason than this alone.

WILSON MANAGERS ARE GUILTY ONES

As Shown by Their Own Letters and Actions and Charges Are Proved False.

(SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The specious character of the attempts made by Mr. Wilson's campaign managers to indicate that Mr. Hughes has made a compact with citizens of foreign extraction to present to the public their views of how foreign relations should be administered is further shown by a letter, made public by William H. Wilcox, chairman of the Republican national committee. The letter is addressed to Henry Weismann, president of the New York state branch of the German-American Alliance. It was written on stationery of the Democratic national committee and was signed by an associate of Frederick B. Lynch, chief of its bureau of political organizations and clubs. In this letter Mr. Weismann was invited in polite terms to meet Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the United States Senate, who was in New York on the avowed mission of winning over to Mr. Wilson's support certain citizens of German birth.

"The absurd and disingenuous phase of the whole matter," said Mr. Wilcox, "is that while Mr. Wilson's managers have charged specifically on two separate occasions that Mr. Hughes was compounding with a certain branch of the electorate, they themselves were covertly soliciting, in a most abject way, the support of members of the German-American Alliance." This is the letter to Mr. Weismann:

"Democratic national committee headquarters, 30 East Forty-second street, New York, September 11, 1916.

"My dear Mr. Weismann: Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, will be at the Waldorf on Thursday. Don't you and a few of your friends want to have an informal talk with him on Thursday or Friday evening. Phone me upon receipt of this, Murray Hill 919, and oblige.

"Yours very truly,

"F. W. Jansen."

"Mr. Weismann is a lawyer at 44 Court street, Brooklyn," Mr. Wilcox went on. "The date September 11, is significant, because five days later, on September 16, occurred the famous party at Terrace Garden, when Senator Stone set up so late making alleged plans to leading citizens of German birth or extraction to support the Wilson cause. He directed his pleas to them not as American citizens but as Germans in the United States. Mr. Weismann says that he did not reply to the letter, but that two days later he got a telephone message from the writer, Mr. Jansen, asking why no reply had been sent. Mr. Jansen expressed himself as anxious to have Mr. Weismann accept the invitation, because Senator Stone was then at the Waldorf and was expecting him to call upon him. Mr. Weismann replied that, inasmuch as he respected the office which Senator Stone held he could not visit him, because he feared that the kind of conversation that must necessarily ensue would be highly disagreeable to the senator.

"In all of the attempts made by Democratic managers, including Norman Hapgood, unsupported statements have been made that Mr. Hughes made explicit promises of support not one shred of documentary evidence has been produced on that point. On the contrary, the charges have fallen down in every particular. Moreover, the hypocrisy of the charge has been made ties the clearing house for the relief of the needy of the city of Clarksburg. Let the Associated Charities do it for you!

Last, but not least, when representative business men of our community, such as those whose names I find on the last page of this pamphlet, give expression to the thoughts of their hearts in such beautiful epigrams as I find there, the last vestige of doubt disappears from my mind, and I heartily respond to the question with which this leaflet closes: "As God has prospered me, making me a steward of part of His boundless wealth, of the spirit. If not the letter, of the civil service laws and regulations under the Wilson administration, which have been censured by the league, would fill a page of this newspaper.

YES, I WILL HELP."

apparent through the production of conclusive evidence that Mr. Wilson's managers were trying to do exactly what they charged Mr. Hughes with having done. Mr. Hughes has neither agreed nor promised. I use the words of Mr. Hapgood and the writer of the statement put out in Monday morning's papers by the Democratic national committee—to reflect in his public addresses the opinions of any particular group.
